For the baker

Read this before you hand the form out.

- Fill in every [square bracket]: your bakery name, where the form goes, your notice period, your deposit and where you deliver.
- Fill the size table with your own servings guide and prices. Delete sizes you do not make, and rename the rest to match your menu and the tracker's Lists tab.
- Write your notice period in the box at the top and stick to it. If a holiday rush means you stop taking orders on a set date, write that date on the form too.
- Confirm each order back to the customer: the date, the size, the design and the price. Then ask for the deposit.
- Write down every allergy answer and read it again before you bake. Tell customers plainly what your kitchen uses. Do not promise a cake free of an allergen unless you can keep that promise.
- Selling food you make at home has its own rules in each state, and some cities and counties add their own. Some states limit which fillings and frostings you can use, and some ask for a label with the ingredients. Check your state's cottage food rules before you sell. This form is not legal advice.
- Log each paper order in the order and prep tracker the same day, so your bake list and the money owed stay in one place.

The words that match the tracker
